I have a function that takes a single input and I want to be able to add a second input to that function. A: Sure, there's different ways to do this, such as using currying and partial application, or using the * operator on objects: (function(a, b) { // your a and b here, or they are omitted // for example, if you have a function // f(x, y, z) // you can partially apply it by using // f(0, y, z) // which calls it with z as the third argument })(1,2) and function f(a, b) { // etc. } f.apply(null, [1, 2]) (see this page for more info, such as examples of currying and how you can get the this value from the arguments object). The present invention relates to an attachment for a drill string for reciprocating a sub-surface mechanism in a predetermined path in a bore hole at a desired angle of inclination relative to a longitudinal axis of the drill string. Sub-surface reciprocation mechanisms have been devised and used previously for effecting different drilling operations. One such device comprises a driving mechanism which reciprocates a relatively short section of the drill string in the desired direction, at a desired angle to the longitudinal axis of the drill string. The mechanism is generally operated by drilling fluid pumped down the drill string. In this way drilling must be interrupted when the reciprocating mechanism is required to effect a change of direction in the path followed by the drill bit. U.S. Pat. No. 3,782,472 describes a remote control reciprocating apparatus for driving a drill bit or other mechanism at an angle to the longitudinal axis of the drill string. The mechanism is powered by an electric motor which is mounted on an extendible pole which can
