Wegener's granulomatosis: therapeutic perspective. Wegener's granulomatosis (WG) is a life threatening systemic vasculitis that may affect the respiratory and/or the ear and eye systems. Treatment of WG is still based on therapy trials conducted in 1968-1980. Despite the effective new steroid sparing drugs and the identification of causal factors, the WG still carries a significant mortality and morbidity despite advanced therapeutic approach. It is the main topic of this review that it is unlikely that the treatment that we have today will cure WG in the future. The implementation of the Swedish model of care in WG has been shown to reduce the mortality and morbidity in WG in one Swedish county. The question is however, how transferable this strategy is and if it will be possible to implement the treatment strategy in other countries. Therefore, in this review we have selected recent and older literature with the focus on remission induction therapy as current standard. The biomarkers may have a potential for prognostic and diagnostic use but will also be important for remission induction in a future. Sagittaria lancifolium Sagittaria lanc

TENORS ARMY: Idol Game - Rules of life? - Where can I.Q: ProgressDialog object not closing after submitting data on multithreaded ProgressDialog I am using a ProgressDialog object in a multithreaded application for showing the data being processed. But the problem is, when the status is 'FINISHED', only then does the application closes. The problem is, the application is going to loop again to check the status, so I dont know if its having the final loop or not. Its not just not closing after the data is submitted, but also if there is no data to be submitted, the application is not closing. I dont want to make my application to run forever just to close it. ProgressDialog dialog = new ProgressDialog(ListenerActivity.
