The purpose of the present study was to determine whether a 4-session cancer-specific intervention incorporating facilitated small-group discussions would reduce cancer-related anxiety among primary care patients with a history of cancer. It was hypothesized that the intervention would reduce cancer-related anxiety and cancer worry. A randomized controlled trial was conducted. Individuals (n = 102) with a recent diagnosis of cancer and a primary care physician in the Tufts Medical Center Department of Family Medicine clinics in Massachusetts were invited to participate in 595f342e71
