News SFXRV Low-budget multi-camera film project, starring Elizabeth Olsen, Abbie Cornish, and Keir Gilchrist, has managed to acquire it's financing after only two years of development. The film is an adaptation of Austin Grossman's graphic novel, featuring a team of five travelers of different ages embarking on a cross country trip, their mission to rescue a kidnapped teenager. The project was first announced in September 2012, and 2 years later it has managed to secure a distribution deal. "It was a thrill to be in post on a film like this," said director Keir Gilchrist. "I really love the social implications of the story. It's about kids, teenagers, and their vulnerability. Teenage love is my favorite thing in life. There is a lot of material in the novel for a feature film but we had to make the question of what we could add ourselves and move the story forward in our own unique way." The director will be working with Oscar-winning editor Lee Smith (Denial, The Village, The Reader) and screenwriter Rodney Norman (Knife Fight, Little Miss Sunshine) to craft a narrative that boasts an emotionally charged experience and some great characters. A love letter to the road trip on the American landscape, the picture is set to depart for the States in spring 2016. There 6d1f23a050
