the work you do will make a difference in the lives of others. that was the mission with which i set out when i started coffee2success® sixteen years ago. the goal was to help people rise up from the ashes of failure and create success in their lives. with two decades of research in over 20 countries, the author and founder of thepast test, dr. laurence jacobs has continued to be known as "the father of the strengthsfindertm. dr. jacobs' extensive research and theory have resulted in a methodology for identifying and strengthening human potential, now known as the past test™. the past test™ is a short, structured inventory that helps people identify their strengthsfindertm. people can complete the test on their own as an individual self-assessment or they can do it as a group, on behalf of their organization. many people have wondered how it can be that a coach who has been involved with high performance for decades can still be surprised by the results of a workplace study. caliber press has written an in-depth look at how they gathered data, discussed their findings and the influences of culture. they also share a suite of resources they recommend you to use to avoid getting too far into the weeds. welcome to the new academic press website! we are excited to show you everything we do to strengthen the connection between researchers and their audiences. we are also proud of our new look and improved site navigation. in fact, we have redesigned the entire academic press site, extending our commitment to the web. we use technology to create a better environment for the creation and exchange of knowledge. this new website will allow you to keep up to date with all of our current products and services.

in this new edition, the authors have rethought the presentation of their material and have developed a new style that relies on graphics, interactive problems, and visual learning aids to enhance student learning. its primary strength is its ability to replicate, for undergraduate, high-school, and upper-level courses, the course of study in which students learn by doing, making practice a prerequisite to understanding. a large class of relations are discontinuous; we investigate these and other possible forms of discontinuity, and present simple axioms that characterize these forms. one simple example is a relation that returns true for a function and false for a different function. we introduce a variant of the ordered relation that solves this problem. the universal substitution rules for natural deduction and its extensions are a natural deduction system that generalize to arbitrary sequents rules that are proven more easily. we explicitly manipulate these generalized substitution rules and illustrate the use of universal substitution rules with the full lambek calculus. in this paper we discuss the geometric properties of finite variable terms for the order completion logic of linear logic. the results obtained on the properties of the geometric operations on the  $w$ -valued representation of the order-complete terms enable us to formulate the cyclicity axiom (cyclic-cc-axiom),

and to give an alternative proof of the derivability of this axiom. a geometrical interpretation of the cc-axiom is proposed, and a separation of the cyclicity axiom from the other axioms of the calculus is proved. the geometry of order-complete terms is related with that of the w-valued geometrical representation of l-terms studied in (ribeiro, 2002, 2006). it is further shown that the cyclicity axiom can be derived from another (minimal)

extension of the right unit
